UK borders and migration policy

The government published its Illegal Migration Bill. If passed into law it would enable government to remove people arriving in the UK via irregular routes such as crossing the Channel in small boats, without allowing them to first make an asylum claim. (Sources: UK Parliament, BBC)

There's been widespread criticism of the proposed legislation, including from UNHCR who stated it would be 'extinguishing the right to seek refugee protection in the United Kingdom for those who arrive irregularly, no matter how genuine and compelling their claim may be'. The EU said the Bill would breach the European Convention on Human Rights and the Home Secretary recognises there is 'more than a 50% chance' of such a contravention. Many see the proposals as unworkable in practice, for example due to limited capacity within the detention estate. Public debate was heightened as football presenter Gary Lineker defended his comments likening government rhetoric to that of 1930s Germany, with BBC sport programmes disrupted over the subsequent weekend as commentators stood by their colleague. Specific migrant groups

In the new year it was revealed that around 200 children seeking asylum have gone missing from Home Office provided hotels since June 2021; just 13 children have been found since January. There are still concerns about gangs grooming children in hotels for criminal activities. (Sources: iNews, BBC)

Home Office documents show over 2,500 victims of crime were reported by police to immigration enforcement between 2020 and 2022, including children who have been sexually exploited and women subjected to domestic violence. Critics say it's making those affected 'victims twice over'. (Source: the Guardian)

The Bell Foundation provides a framework for schools who are welcoming young refugees into their classrooms, particularly on how to make most use of available funding. (Source: The Bell Foundation).

The Windrush Schemes Factsheet is updated with data for the end of January 2023; 59% of compensation claims have had a final decision, over £55 million has been paid and over £10 million more offered. (Source: Home Office)

On modern slavery:

- The National Referral Mechanism (NRM) is the system for identifying and supporting modern slavery survivors. Latest NRM statistics for October to December 2022 show the number of people referred was the second highest number recorded. Albania remains the top nationality. The summary for the year 2022 was also published with 16,938 potential victims referred during 2022, the highest annual number since records began in 2009. Both datasets show an initial grant rate over 80%.
- Government analysis considers the number of people referred to the NRM while detained after arriving on small boats.
- This briefing includes an overview of the debate prompted by ministerial assertions that the modern slavery system is being abused by individuals at risk of removal from the UK.

Various events promoting the culture of Hong Kong are taking place in March. Hong Kong March initiative is led by the Hong Kong Umbrella Community with a variety of local events taking place across the Yorkshire and Humber region. In other news, the government BNO visa page has been updated to clarify the process of the BNO visa extension. (Sources: Hong Kong March, Gov.uk)

On EU nationals, a new briefing looks at the implications of the judgement on pre-settled status holders and potential options for its implementation by the Home Office. (Source: Migration Observatory)

Cohesion and integration

Harewood House in Leeds has commissioned a portrait of the Black British actor David Harewood as part of a project to acknowledge historical links to slavery. (Source: the Guardian)

A woman who came to the UK as a child in the 1960s from Kenya describes her experience of over 50 years of racism here. Meanwhile, experiences of British Asian families since the 1950s are brought to life in the current series of 'Back in Time', including the invention of the Balti in Birmingham.
